All of these need planning and thinking about carefully for the website to work and be useful. Thinking about your website idea what would yours need to say? Have a look at the labels try to find these on a real website.

Page titles are very important. Each page title on your website should be clear and concise and refer to the content of the page.

The navigation shows visitors to your webpage how they can find other parts of your website. Navigation links should have clear titles to make your web content easy to find.

The URL is the address of your web page. To get more people to visit your site you will want an address that is easy to remember.

You can include images to make your site look more appealing or make information easier to understand.

You can also add videos and audio clips to your site.

You can format the text on your website in lots of different ways. You can also include links to other parts of your site and to other websites.

The banner often runs across the top of a website. It makes it easy to identify your site.

It has never been easier to make your own website. You can use desktop publishing software to build a webpage and when you are ready, you just have to click 'Publish'.
