Spelling: <ul style="list-style-type: none">This week I want you to use your No Nonsense Spelling techniques to ensure you are spelling all the new Space topic words correctly. It's a good idea to use as many different strategies as you can. See if you can be tested on the ones you have chosen. Check the Space Topic plan, it asks you to create a Wordle from these Space words.

Activity 2: Complete the Book Talk activity based on Wind In The Willows.
Activity 3: Creative writing – https://vimeo.com/channels/theplanets/58524531 <ul style="list-style-type: none">This link takes you to the work of Andy Martin. He created 12 planets. Watch the short film of Planet 1. It is a place full of cute aliens. Can you describe it? Could it become a little annoying living there? Create a new alien character who would live on this planet and write a character description of it.During the project the film's creator Andy kept a sketch book of his ideas, a kind of journal or jotter to help him remember. He made it throughout the year of creating The Planets. It has an archive of the daily alien illustrations and the monthly Planet animations. This is what the animated short film was born out of, a daily illustration project that he started to get him back into drawing in his sketchbook. He said a sketchbook helped him develop his characters for the film. Here is the link http://illustratedaliens.tumblr.com/Start a sketchbook or journal of new characters you would like to include in a space story.

Activity 4:Reading For Pleasure

- I know many of you are posting pictures on Seesaw of the books you are reading. This week's challenge is to capture amazing places you are reading. We all love to find a quiet place where we can find peace and quiet to let us fully enjoy our books. Let's see where we choose to read and of course what books we read too. Can I please ask, as with our Zoom meeting, the pictures follow all the online safety rules that we have learnt about. Please be fully dressed and whilst I know so many of you love reading at night please avoid bedrooms.
