

Risky Business!

It is good to help other people who have had an accident. But there is a risk - we might get hurt ourselves when trying to help.

Emergency service workers are highly skilled in thinking quickly and carefully, to work out if there are any more risks of injury to the injured person, others or themselves before they begin helping.

TASK 1: There are three examples of accidents in the box below.

Draw a picture for each one in your workbook, to show the accident.

Write down what the danger there might be for a person who gives any help, and suggest how it can be made safer.

1. Ryan has a cut from broken glass when playing in the park.
2. Ben has fallen off a bike onto a busy road with traffic.
3. Jess has burned herself from a firework. She has dropped the firework, but it is still alight on the ground.

TASK 2

Explain: In your own words and using your own examples, explain the meaning of 'risk'.

Write down what risks you might have taken so far today or so far this week, (think about the different risks if you have been outside).

Organise your risk examples from high to low.

High being very dangerous - Low being a small amount of risk.

Think, Decide and Explain how you could 'manage' (reduce) the risk of the highest thing on your list.
