

TASKS

Positive and Negative, so Social media can have both good and bad effects.

Task 1: Think about this question: How might TV replays have a negative effect on sportsmanship?

Jot down your first thoughts.

Down at the bottom of this page is an answer to this (try not to look), then compare it to yours.

What sport would you want to report on, on SeeSaw?

Task 2: Choose a sport that you like, try to find a report on the internet or on social media for your chosen sport. You might need to ask an adult to use social media.

Task 3: Most sports reports in the media now are about how they will deal with Coronavirus and its impact on how they earn money. Write up a report to go on SEESAW (which is a form of social media), that:

1. Describes your sport.
2. Explains how Coronavirus has affected it.
3. Suggests when it might be played again.

Features and analysis

'Definitely not the real thing': why eracers can't go from the bedroom to the cockpit

With more and more F1 drivers making the move to esports during the lockdown and doing well, could an expert sim racer easily make the leap the other way?

'I want to put a smile on people's faces' - Leclerc on being a lockdown sim racing star

'I miss driving': kids and bikes are Vettel's new normal

'He was fast and had a great smile' - remembering Roland Ratzenberger

Who said that? Guess the memorable F1 quotes

'Sir Stirling Moss - the man who personified motorsport'

The hardest F1 car liveries quiz ever

Find us here

Find out more about our BBC Sport App

Help & FAQs

This image is taken from BBC Sport - Formula 1. Note that the news it reports is available on Twitter, Facebook, Instagram and Youtube.

Answer: TV replays might: a) encourage players and spectators to question the officials' decisions, b) show players getting away with misconduct or c) incite spectators to abuse players.Co