Before Officer Pugh could unravel this clue
The robbers were on him like beasts from a zoo.

They knocked off his helmet and rumpled his tie,
Trod on his truncheon, kicked mud in his eye,

Pulled his ears and tickled his feet,
Threw half of his clothes all over the street,

Punched and pummelled him – Wham – Bam – SLAM
Even ran over him with the pram.

Now, we hear, there's worse to come,
For the robbers are planning – the scalliwag scum –
To make a haul on Christmas Eve
Of all the toys that they can thieve.
Like crooked santas they'll creep about,
Pinching presents – not giving them out.

Ho Ho for the robbers
The cops and the robbers Ho Ho!

Here are the cops of London town,
Hardworking, brave and true.
They drink their tea,
Stay up till three
And take good care of you.
