The Tin Forest

Written by Helen Ward Illustrated by Wayne Anderson

There was once a wide windswept place, near nowhere and close to forgotten, that was filled with all the things that no one wanted.

Right in the middle was a small house,
with small windows,
that looked out on other people's rubbish and bad weather.

In the house
lived an old man.

Every day he tried to tidy away the rubbish, sifting and sorting,

burning and bury

And every night
the old man dreamed.

He dreamed he lived in a jungle full of wild forest animals.
There were colourful birds, tropical trees, exotic flowers, toucans, tree frogs
and tigers.

But when he awoke,
his world outside was still the same.

One day something caught the old man's eye and an idea planted itself in his head.

The idea grew roots and sprouted.
Feeding on the rubbish,
it grew leaves.

It grew branches.

It grew bigger and b

Under the old man's hand, a forest emerged.

A forest made of rubbish.
A forest made of tin.
It was not the forest of his dreams, but it was a forest just the same.

Then one day across the windswept plain the wind swept a small bird.

The old man spilled crumbs from his sandwiches onto the ground.

The bird ate the crumbs and perched to sing in the branches of a tin tree.

But the next morning the visitor was gone.

All day the old man walked through the silence and his heart ached with emptiness
